

Customer Update – 4/1/20
COVID-19

Since our last communication, we continue to report that Central Life Sciences falls within the designation of an essential business according to the Department of Homeland Security guidelines.

While we continue to operate in a manner consistent with the various shelter in place directives, our manufacturing facility has implemented multiple measures to comply with federal and state mandates regarding COVID-19. Some of the measures implemented, however have resulted in lower output due to a reduction in staff, additional spacing of workers in the production process and enhanced cleaning procedures.

The Central Life Sciences procurement team continues to reach out to our vendors and monitor their ability to deliver. We are currently not seeing a disruption in our supply chain as we continue to manufacture and ship products to our valued customers.

If any new restrictions are enacted that would change our ability to fill orders, you will be notified.

Please continue to send orders to our Customer Service department via email and EDI. They are also available to take your call.

As previously mentioned, the COVID-19 outbreak is going to affect our lives—but not the quality of our work. We are very grateful for your business, and our thoughts are with your company and family as we all navigate this unprecedented time.

Follow guidelines for health. Be safe. Stay well.

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Mark A. Taylor".

Mark A. Taylor
Vice President – Marketing
Central Life Sciences

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Tracy L. Harris III".

Tracy L. Harris III
Vice President - Sales
Central Life Sciences